

Dear IA Phoenix Community,

Last night the Fulton County School Board officially approved our newest addition, Mrs. Agnes Anne Browning as assistant principal for FCS Innovation Academy. Two weeks ago, we conducted interviews which included members from the community, staff, and district and we all agreed that Mrs. Browning would fit perfectly in the IA vision for our students and staff.

Mrs. Browning's most recent experience is at Johns Creek High School where she leads PBIS (Positive Behavior Intervention Strategies), SST (Student Support Team), AP examinations, New Teacher Induction, and School Governance. I'm most excited about her in-depth work around Design-Thinking and the passion she has around projects. Prior to Johns Creek HS, Mrs. Browning served as the Coordinator of Transdisciplinary Project and Sustainability with The Lovett School and Lab Atlanta and co-taught a design and innovation course with faculty from Stanford University.

Mrs. Browning is certified to teach English, ESOL, French, Gifted and of course Leadership. Throughout her career she has continually received numerous awards and recognitions in each of her positions. She has written and received several grants and presented at multiple conferences. Assistant Principal Browning will officially be joining us in January and is expected to make an immediate impact. Please join me in welcoming Mrs. Browning to the IA Family.

With great anticipation and excitement,

Tim Duncan
